Mission of the Music Studies Department

We approach music as an essential part of human culture and therefore engage with the diversity of musical meanings and practices globally and locally.

Our student and faculty research enriches understandings of music as sound, text and activity.

We engage with local, regional, national and international communities through teaching, publications, lectures, conferences, symposia, performances, festivals and other educational and cultural programs.